

I am presently a paralegal student. A subject similar to this has recently come up in class. Everyone in class agreed that too much of our personal information is already at anyone's fingertips. Not everyone's goal is to be left alone at mealtime. Not having this info floating around is also a way to protect ourself, our homes, and our families. The gov't has no business allowing this "personal information" (not listed as "individual information") to be given out. I realize this comment, etc. becomes part of a public filing. I'm sure I'm speaking for many people that won't respond simply because of that reason.